A Word From The Artist

The desire to create has been a part of me ever since childhood. My choice of profession, as dictated by the spirit of the times, was rather more artisan than artistic. I studied to be an architectural technician. However, at a relative late age my dream of devoting myself to art became reality. After years of attending art classes, I turned art into a way of life. Working alone with no instructions, I searched a subject I could interpret personally. It was not a coincidence that I chose nature, with its endless possibilities, with its power and colors that set imagination racing.
